WELCOME ABOARD

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) provides an integrated network of service throughout the Boston metropolitan area. More than 155 bus routes crisscross the region, many of them feeding into the Red, Orange and Blue rapid transit lines as well as the four streetcar branches of the Green Line. Commuter Rail service suburban riders from Rhode Island to the New Hampshire border and west to Framingham. For riders with special needs who are unable to use public transportation there is paratransit van service. Trackless trolley and commuter boat services complete the service.

The MBTA, known to most people as the "T," is the oldest subway system in the United States. But thanks to an investment of more than $2 billion in federal and state funds since 1981, the MBTA is quickly becoming one of the nation's newest public transportation systems. In 1983-85, four new stations on the Red Line opened in Cambridge and Somerville. In 1987, new Orange Line service through Boston's Southwest Corridor began, along with Commuter Rail and Amtrak service.

Significant reinvestment in the system is rapidly becoming more evident. More and more passengers are finding themselves on new buses and trains. Antiquated stations in Cambridge and Boston are being modernized and expanded to handle longer trains. Aging tracks have been replaced and power systems upgraded. All of this means safe and reliable service for the many millions of riders who depend on MBTA service.

INTRODUCING THE NEW ORANGE LINE

The newest addition to the public transit system is the Orange Line extending from New England Medical Center in downtown Boston through Roxbury to the Forest Hills section of Jamaica Plain (Southwest Corridor). The new Orange Line features nine modern attractive stations, all completely accessible for senior citizens and special needs riders, and all equipped with special security features. Three of the new stations double as MBTA Commuter Rail stops, one provides connections to Amtrak intercity service.

The former Orange Line stations along Washington Street are closed. Buses are now serving Washington Street and the new Orange Line stations.

LOGAN INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT

You can get to Logan Airport by taking the Blue Line to Airport Station. At Airport Station, free shuttle buses operate to and from all airline terminals every 12 minutes or less. Bus 22 stops at terminals A and B and the Airport Tower, and bus 33 stops at terminals C, D and E. For more information call 1-800-23-LOGAN 24 hours a day.

Also, the Logan Airport-Rowes Wharf Water Shuttle is a convenient way to travel between Logan Airport and Rowes Wharf in downtown Boston. For more information on schedules, fares or bulk discounts call 439-3131.

COMMUTER RAIL SERVICE

Commuter Rail is the MBTA's suburban transportation service, carrying almost 12 million riders a year to and from Boston. The MBTA, which owns the Commuter Rail system, contracts with Amtrak to operate the trains. North of Boston, Commuter Rail extends to Fitchburg (with bus connections to Gardner), Lowell, Haverhill, Ipswich and Rockport. South of the city, it reaches Stoughton, Attleboro, Franklin, Needham, Fairmount-Readville and Framingham. Service to Providence returned in early 1988.

Commuter Rail service starts early in the morning and continues until midnight. Trains leave North and South Stations about every 20 to 30 minutes during peak service hours and every one to two hours during midday and late evening. Most trains operate on Saturdays with limited Sunday service on the Northside. (Service varies according to line and stop; be sure to check the appropriate schedules, which are available at North and South Stations and at outlying ticket agencies.)

ACCESSIBLE SERVICES

The MBTA provides transportation to thousands of disabled riders every day on lift-equipped buses. THE RIDE vans, rail coaches and on the rapid transit system. In addition, all Massachusetts residents with special needs who obtain a statewide access pass from the MBTA's Special Needs Pass office on the concourse in the Downtown Crossing Station can travel at reduced fares throughout the MBTA system and on Regional Transit Authority systems. Recent major improvements on the MBTA provide greatly expanded access to special needs riders.

THE RIDE, a door-to-door paratransit service, operates in thirty-six (36) cities and towns and will be expanded to more communities in 1988. For information on service areas and application/registration procedures, contact the Office for Special Needs. (See telephone numbers on reverse side.)

Hearing impaired riders can obtain current service and schedule information through the use of telephone communications devices (TTYs) at the Office for Special Needs located at 10 Boylston Place, Boston, MA and at the MBTA General Information line. (See telephone numbers on reverse side.)

The Call-A-Lift Bus program allows passengers in wheelchairs to schedule a lift-equipped bus on most of 155 MBTA routes. Certain MBTA routes are always equipped with lift buses. Call the Office for Special needs for specific route information.
